

As a person with a longstanding interest in FCC regulation of public airwaves, I was shocked to find out that Sinclair is forcing all its stations to show "Stolen Honor," in an obvious effort to influence the coming Presidential election two weeks away. This development thoroughly underscores our concerns that permitting one entity to control a number of media outlets can lead to political control of information citizens receive. Sinclair has stolen FCC's honor. I hope you will take steps to prevent this from happening, now and in the future.
